Bexley Public Library Donation Opportunities

A gift to Bexley Public Library is a wonderful way to honor or memorialize a spouse, friend, relative, colleague or child on just about any occasion. We strive to make the library a center for learning and leisure, a gathering place, and a source of community pride. Your contribution directly helps us realize this goal. You can support the library by making a tax-deductible gift of any size. Gifts may be given to the library for general use or donated to one of the funds detailed below:

Jane Brown Children's Book Fund

Named in honor of a former Library Board Trustee, this expendable fund contributes to purchasing books for the Youth Services department.

Paige & Michael Crane Fund

This expendable fund in honor of current Board Trustee, Paige Crane, provides the library with funding for administrative and general purposes.

Radnor Fund for Children's Services

In honor of the Library's Board current president, Alan T. Radnor, this expendable fund helps support children's programming and materials.

Samuel C. Shamansky Fund

Established in memory of Samuel C. Shamansky by his son Samuel H. Shamansky, the fund is an expendable trust that may be used for administrative or general purposes and traditionally sponsors the library's Tea @ Three music series.

Brad Alan Sokolov Fund for the Bexley Audiovisual Library

Established in memory of Brad Sokolov, a young patron and friend of the library, earnings from the fund's principle are used to purchase new audiovisual items.

J. F. Schacht Memorial Fund

Earnings from this fund, established in memory of a teacher of mathematics in the Bexley Schools, are used to purchase mathematics books for the library collection.

Louise M. McCulloch Endowment for Literary and Scholarly Works

Established in honor of former Library Trustee Louise M. McCulloch, earnings from the principle on this endowment are used to purchase copies of great literature, classic fiction, and scholarly works.
